NAVEEN JAIN - PROPRIETOR

Naitik Home Appliances was established in 2010 by Mr. Naveen Jain (director), who noticed a big problem in the gas stove manufacturing industry of the country. He observed that there was a persistent supply of old types of models in the channels, and there was a need for an infusion of latest technology-driven models which could meet the demand and revolutionise the market through innovative developments. We conceptualised new models with latest features, never-seen-before intricacies and efficient methods of production. He tried to introduce new models from the first day of inception, by prioritising technology and focussing on benefiting customers by understanding their needs and requirements. With passage of time, we set a benchmark for innovation, and soon started selling our products at competitive prices to capture a significant size of the vast market and appeal to a wider customer segment. Through word of mouth and a constant commitment to effective production, we were able to achieve a stable stronghold in various cities of India as well as a plethora of happy and satisfied customers.

We then began to venture into other related home appliances like LPG geysers and chimneys, and also began to improve the quantity and quality of production of our marquee product, LPG gas stoves. The Make in India policy of the Government also benefited us in our production ventures, and furthering the policy, we try to be all Indian in our production. In line with the thought of giving back to the society which has given us so much, we have started to focus on energy efficient and green methods of production, and have also prioritised providing employment opportunities to the youth through our recruitment policy. In a nutshell, we have and will always continue to strive towards excellence in all our ventures, and will keep on innovating to cater to the pulse of our audience. Therefore, we and our work are a perfect embodiment of the rapidly sprouting exponential growth of India.
